MARC LHERMITTE

Marc is a Senior Partner in EY's consulting practice. He has over 25 years of experience assessing the competitiveness and attractiveness of industries, countries, cities and infrastructure for public sector entities, financial investors, real estate players and multinationals.

Since 2017, Marc leads EY's EMEIA initiatives on geopolitics. He coordinates EY's renowned "Attractiveness" surveys, based on interviews with over 5,000 business leaders every year who are asked about their investment plans and perception of countries and regions.

He is also involved in a number of EY's thought leadership programs on sectors such as creative industries, real estate, digital and services.

In addition, he is part of EY's Public Sector and Real Estate leadership teams. Marc also serves on the board of the Europe + Foundation and is a member of the European Executive Council.
